

March 5th, 2015

Dear parents,

Wow, that was a crazy lunch hour today! I hope every student was able to get where they were supposed to go. I did my best to double check and get everyone to the right spot. Because of the sewer smell and they don't know what is wrong, there is no school tomorrow March 6th and Monday, March 9th. When we return to school next week it will be a day 6. As mentioned before the days just shift. Snack helpers for Friday and Monday are off the hook. Just the days shift. I will not send home a new calendar.

However, we did have a fun week. We have been celebrating Dr. Seuss and reading books and completing activities to go with it. Language arts we have continued talking about the sun and night and day. We finished up with the remainder of the sight words, nine & ten. The students should know all of the 3rd quarter sight words and of course 1st & 2nd quarter. They will be tested on them next week for report cards.

In math we started talking about different combinations to make ten. (example- 2 plus 8 more equal 10). We will continue working on this skill until next Friday. Please practice at home.

Due to the early release and no school, t-shirt orders and conference request are due Tuesday morning. I will send confirmed times home on Tuesday afternoon.

If you have any questions please let me know.

Have a good weekend!

Mrs. Hamm ☺